Koh Samui Season and Climate

Dry Season

December – February: Dry season and sunny day during this period of the year, not much raining, small refreshing wind or breeze on the islands and great time for surfing.

Hot Season

March - August: The weather is dry and rather hot. In May, the raining may increase a little. This is a great period to visit Samui if you can stand 30-35 degrees Celsius during daytime.

Rain Season

September - November: Monsoon season. It's still hot and sunny days most of the time. Sometimes you might find yourself in a refreshing monsoon shower for a moment. The rain showers often last just for a short while though and as these island's water supplies are finite, the water is needed.
